

THE GAZETTE.

JANESVILLE, WEDNESDAY, MAY 28.

FACT VERSES THEORY.

There is a continual harping by some of the free trade papers on the "robbery" of the tariff by the tariff which increases the duty on unwashed wool of the first class from 10 cents a pound to 11 cents. It does not require special ability to call names and find fault and cry robbery. Anybody can do that. It does take a little sober thought to discriminate between fact and theory and to reason after the fashion of intelligence and common sense.

The Chicago Tribune is still in the valley of despair on the question of clothing for the poor people, if the senate should concur in the McKinley bill. It does not see any hope for the weaver of woolen goods if the duty of 11 cents is allowed to stand on wool of the first class. Does the Tribune know how much wool it takes for the cloth necessary to make a suit of clothes? Did it ever figure on the power of the one cent a pound over the present rate of duty the McKinley bill would have in advancing prices on clothing? Probably it never did.

In a suit of clothing made out of first class goods costing about three dollars a yard, and for which the merchant (tailor) charges from $30 to $35 a suit, there are about thirteen pounds of wool. This is what the manufacturers say. The present tariff on wool of the first class is ten cents a pound. In a suit of clothes costing from $30 to $35, the duty on the wool out of which they are made, would amount to $1.30! How under the sun is that a robbery or a burden? If there were no benefits at all resulting from protection—no increase in wages, no employment given to our people, no nothing whatever of a helpful nature coming from the protection of our wool interest, then the additional cost on the entire suit on account of the duty would be but $1.30!

In the average readymade business suits costing from $15 to $20, there are about nine pounds of wool. Suppose the wool duty was a tax, but which it is not, then the tax was added to price, the increase would be only 90 cents!

This illustration can be carried on in a large number of articles manufactured from raw material on which there is a duty, and it shows how utterly foolish is the howling against the tariff on wool. Take this illustration, for instance, which is a common one because often quoted: "The best suits are selling in England for $34.50 per ton and the United States tariff duty is $17 per ton. The Courier says the tariff is a tax, and consequently the people would be taxed $17 on every ton of goods used in the United States. The theory is that $34.50, the cost in England, plus $17 duty, $51.50, should represent the price here. The fact is that suits here cost $32."

A LITTLE TOO MALIGNANT.

The defeat of the international copyright bill by the house of representatives has put the temper of the English press in a sorry condition. One would suppose that free trade England would want free trade books, and if the makers of carpets and clothing want their goods to come to the United States free of duty and cheap in price, that the bookmaker would also want their products to come here under like conditions. But that is not the case, and because the one hundred and twenty-six members of the house voted against dear books, one of the London papers publishes the following notice:

But when there is no room for any doubt as to the guilt of an American visitor—when, for example, we know that he is a member of the majority which last year gave a dishonest and disgraceful vote—there can be no hesitation as to the course which it is our duty to pursue. No man who has taken part in the maintenance of this system of organized theft is fit to be admitted to English society. No club should open its doors to him; no private person should offer him hospitality. If he comes here let him be treated as a pariah, and made to feel himself the moral leper and outcast of the community.

Any scheme which tends to make good reading for the people dearer, should be defeated. If England has anything good to read and the American people want it, it should be printed in this country on such terms as the people can afford to buy it, and the same may be said of American books being reprinted in Europe.

The fact is, European authors want a broader field than they have on the continent. There are more reading people in the United States than in England, or to state it more correctly, there are more people in this country who buy the works of Dickens, Scott, Thackeray, Eliot and Reade, than there are in England; and hence there is a wonderful field for a harvest for English authors in the United States if there could be a copyright law. This would make fresh reading of a foreign character dearer in this country, and for that reason the bill was defeated.

It is not at all likely that any of the famous 126 will be deterred from going to Europe in consequence of the defeat of the English press.

There is one democratic paper in Chicago which takes great pleasure in speaking its mind on the importance of supporting the cardinal principle of the educational law of Wisconsin. In regard to the German Catholic convention in Milwaukee it says:

The German Catholics of Wisconsin are about to formulate a plan of attack upon the compulsory school law of that state. They will be subject to great suspicion at the outset and their wisest course would be to do nothing in a corner. The Herald has no very exalted opinion of the motives of the people who assail these school laws, but it is not yet ready to believe that the men in charge of the Milwaukee meeting will be so foolish as to carry out the dark-lantern programme that they are said to have laid down.

There is not much use of the German Catholics holding a secret session. They cannot hide their hostility to the educational law. They cannot cover up their bitter opposition to the public school system. They may as well talk right out in meeting and let the public know how they stand.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, in a speech at Brockton, Massachusetts, in which she reverses the supreme court's "original package" decision, says that if it had been a woman who possessed the quality to make such a decision she would have gone 10 miles to shake her. If Mrs. Livermore has what is called a woman's way of dealing with great questions, her heart is nevertheless right, and so if her methods are not the wisest she is yet entitled to respect for her courage and spirit of righteousness. It is better to be a little over-indignant in a case of this kind than show a careless indifference.

The president says the stars and stripes shall float above the White House not every week day from sunrise to sunset, but on Sunday too. President Cleveland raised them only when the Marine band played in the White House grounds. The American in Washington has received quite a boom in the last year and three months.

ORIGINAL PACKAGES.

To the Editor.

Much has been said, and more written, on the subject of the late decision of the supreme court in relation to the right to ship intoxicating liquors into states that have laws prohibiting the same; and thus we think, because there is a total misapprehension of the scope and effect of the decision upon the rights of the states to absolutely control the disposition of such liquors when under the jurisdiction of the state. The decision relates solely to the right to ship as a commercial right, and goes no further. It does not conflict with the right of the state under its police power to prohibit or destroy this species of property altogether; nor does this decision conflict with decisions of the supreme court of the United States in regard to the right of the states to control this question. This decision simply relates to the right to ship, but the question as to what the states may do whenever the article comes within their limits, was finally decided by this same court nearly forty years ago in the famous suits carried there from Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island. To make a case the most favorable, liquors in original packages already imported into the states in which a duty to the government had been paid were offered for sale, and the offenders were prosecuted. Messrs. Webster, Choate, and Hallett from Massachusetts; Messrs. Ames and Whipple, from Rhode Island; and John P. Hale, of New Hampshire, were associated in these connected suits,—the most brilliant array of distinguished counsel, orators, and statesmen that ever appeared in any case. The defense was that "the laws of the states conflicted with the constitution of the United States; the laws of congress and treaties with foreign nations."

On a subject of such vast importance as this, involving more and more pressing interest than any other, separate but concurrent opinions of the entire bench were written, and so completely swept away this unconstitutional argument that not even a fragment of the arguments of the learned counsel remained. The decision of these very important cases, confirms to the fullest extent the police power of the states over the whole question. The court not only declared that there was no conflict between these state prohibitory laws and "the constitution, the laws of congress or treaties," but in all their arguments fully established the right of the state to control entirely the sale of intoxicating drinks, by wholesale as well as retail foreign importations as well as domestic manufactures.

Of course in a paper of this kind I can not give the opinions entire but simply the summing up of each. No stronger array of legal talent ever occupied that bench.

Chief Justice Taney said: "Every state may regulate its own internal traffic according to its own judgment and upon its own views of the interest and well-being of its citizens. I am not aware that these principles have ever been questioned. If any state deems the internal traffic in ardent spirits injurious to its citizens and calculated to lead to idleness, vice and debauchery, I see nothing in the constitution of the United States to prevent it from regulating and restraining the traffic, or from prohibiting it altogether if it thinks proper."

Mr. Justice McLean said: "The acknowledged police power of a state extends often to the destruction of property. A nuisance may be abated. It is the settled construction of every regulation of commerce that no person can introduce into a community malignant diseases, or anything which contaminates its morals or endangers its safety. In individuals in the enjoyment of their own rights must be careful not to injure the rights of others."

Mr. Justice Catron said: "I admit as inevitable, that if the state has the power of restraint by license to any extent, she has the discretionary power to any limit and may go the length of prohibiting sales altogether, if such be her policy and that if this court can not interfere in the case before us neither could we interfere in the extreme case of entire exclusion."

Mr. Justice Daniel said of imports that are cleared of all control of the government, "They are like all other property of the citizen, whether owned by the importer or his vendee, or may have been purchased by the cargo, package, bale, piece or yard, or by hog-heads, asks or bottles. If there, there is any integrity in the objection urged, it should abolish all regulations of retail trade, all taxes on what ever may have been imported." In answering the argument that the importer purchased the right to sell when he pays duties to the government, Mr. Justice Daniel continues to say "No such right is purchased by the importer. He cannot purchase from the government that which it could not insure him, a sale independently of the laws and policy of the state."

Mr. Justice Grier said, "It is not necessary to array the appalling statistics of misery, vice and crime which have their origin in the use or abuse of ardent spirits. The police power which is exclusively in the states, is alone competent to the correction of these great evils, and all measures of restraint or prohibition necessary to affect the purposes are within the scope of state authority. All laws for the restraint or punishment of crime for the preservation of public peace, health, and morals are from their very nature of primary importance, and lie at the foundation of social existence. They are for the protection of life and liberty, and necessarily compel all laws of secondary importance, which relate only to property, convenience or luxury to recede when they come in contact or collision. Salus Populi suprema Lex. The exigencies of the social compact require that such laws be executed before and above all others. It is for this reason that quarantine laws which protect public health, compel commercial regulations to submit to their control. They restrain the liberty of passengers, they operate on the ship which is the instrument of commerce and its officers and crew, the agents of navigation. They seize the infected cargo and cast it overboard. All these things are done not from any power which the state assumes to regulate commerce or to interfere with the regulations of congress but because police laws for the preservation of health, the prevention of crime and protection of public welfare must of necessity have full scope and operation according to the exigency that regulates their interference. If loss of revenue should accrue to the United States from a diminished consumption of ardent spirits, she will be the gainer a thousand fold in the health, wealth and happiness of her people."

Thus all the judges conceded that the absolute control of the sale of intoxicating drinks is within the legitimate province of the state. Nor does the late decision in any respect conflict, but is in harmony with it.

The mere right to ship into a state is a barren one, of no value whatever, nor is any law of congress so effectual, to confirm this right in the state. The parties who have taken their liquors into Iowa will be like the man who went out after wool and came home sheared.

We do not believe that a law of congress amending the interstate commerce regulation to be desirable, as it would establish a precedent that would return to haunt us at every point. One state would ask for prohibition of one article and another still of another, until our free commerce would be of little value. Commerce should be hampered as little as possible.

In the cases above referred to, the decision is in reference to control of liquor once in the state; in the late Iowa case simply the right of a citizen of another state to ship. Iowa will take care of herself. In the presentation of this case we merely desired to present the legal aspect without expressing any opinion as to whether the laws of Iowa are the best or not for the interest of temperance. But the propriety of legislating for the arrest of intemperance and the removal of its evils has been settled by the uniform practice for several centuries of every enlightened people. To so restrain the sale of intoxicating liquors that the evils of intemperance should be prevented has constituted an important part in the legislation of every state in the Union and of every enlightened people on earth.

The common experience of man kind has testified that such laws are essential to the welfare, the safety of the state, while enlightened views of law and justice have demonstrated that they are consistent with all the rights any person can enjoy in a state of society.

HERMAN RASTER'S TREATMENT FOR OBJECTIONABLE ALIENS.

The German Editor Gives His Views Before the Owen Congressional Immigration Committee.

CHICAGO, May 28.—The Congressional sub-committee on immigration met in their second session in Chicago. The first witness of the day was Herman Raster, editor of the Staats Zeitung. Mr. Raster, in reply to questions by Chairman Owen, said he had lived in Chicago twenty-three years. About 30 per cent of the population of Chicago, Mr. Raster said, consisted of persons whose parents were American-born. The remaining 70 per cent were either foreign-born or of foreign parentage. Mr. Raster estimated the foreign-born population to be: German, 225,000; Irish, 150,000; Scandinavians, 40,000; Poles, 90,000; Bohemians, 50,000; Italians, 12,000 to 15,000; Chinese, 1,000.

"From the heterogeneous character of its population I would think Chicago to be as eminently proper place to hold the world's fair," said Mr. Owen. "It is like Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost, when all tribes of the earth were gathered together."

Redactor Raster said that in no city in the United States are so many houses owned by foreigners as in Chicago. There are thousands of them. Most of the German and Scandinavian immigrants who remain in Chicago are engaged in labor rather than in speculation. "But great fortunes are not made by labor, but by speculation or gathering industries into trusts or great establishments," said Mr. Raster. "Most of the German immigrants have a common-school education. 'There is a compulsory education law in every State in Germany,' said Mr. Raster. 'The schools are not free. Each pupil must be paid for by a small fee. I think this is better than the absolutely free school system, because a man will value more highly that for which he pays than something he can get free.'"

"Do you think that many Germans come here with the purpose of saving some money and then returning to Germany?" asked Mr. Owen.

"No. The Germans do not come here to stay. They are ambitious, and when they get $10,000 they want $50,000. Italians and Hungarians come here and many of them return, but not to the extent that is generally supposed."

"The testimony before the commission in New York was that 11,000 Italians returned last year," said Mr. Owen.

Mr. Raster did not think this state of facts applicable to Chicago. "The objectionable immigrants who reached Chicago were the Italians from the south of Italy, the Russian Jews, and the Slovaks."

"What amendments would you suggest to the present law concerning immigration?" asked Mr. Owen.

"Mainly two," replied Mr. Raster. "That no one should be received into this country who cannot read their own language, and be at least able to write his name. Each immigrant should be furnished at the place of shipment by the American Consul with a pamphlet, printed in the language of the immigrant, containing the immigration laws of the United States."

Mr. Raster also said he would go further and would have a law giving the government of this country the right to expel undesirable immigrants at any time after their arrival within the five years of probation before they are admitted to citizenship.

"If we had had that sort of a law years ago," continued Mr. Raster, "there would have been no Haymarket massacre. If it were known all the world over that such laws prevailed in this country, and that for five years every immigrant would be an alien in this country and subject to the laws of hospitality, and liable to be expelled for bad conduct, it would keep out the Anarchists and Socialists, which is very desirable."

Messrs. Lehlbach and Stump cross examined Mr. Raster at length in order to draw out his views fully, but he held to the text of the Adams immigration bill, which he said he had assisted in preparing. He avowed the doctrine of repelling undesirable immigrants over and over again, held to his educational standard, and subject to all aliens examined before being admitted to citizenship.

AGAINST THE BENNETT LAW.

Wisconsin Catholics at Their Convention Denounce It.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 28.—The Bennett school law was hotly denounced by the State convention of the German Catholics in session at Maennerverein hall. The session of the day was created by Bishop Kater of Green Bay, whose fiery speech against the school law and in favor of maintaining the rights of the citizen and the parent as against unnecessary legislation by the State brought the delegates to their feet several times to more enthusiastically express their approval of the sentiments he was expressing. His remarks seemed to go direct to the German heart and his earnest manner was proof positive that the Catholic church of Wisconsin will fight the Bennett law with all the power at its command from now until the polls close next November.

CLUBBED BY THE POLICE.

MEETINGS OF IRISH NATIONALISTS BROKEN UP.

Mr. Dillon Struck on the Head With a Baton—Other News From Over the Sea.

LONDON, May 28.—Mr. Gladstone's remark that the Irish were justified in telling English petitioners that their country should cease its brutal treatment of Irishmen before turning its attention to the horrors of Siberian prisons gains fresh point from a savage attack made up on a meeting at Boherlahin. The Nationalist demonstration proceeded to be held at Cashel, but which was proclaimed by the government, resulted in a sort of hide-and-seek affair through the efforts of the leaders to find a place where a meeting could be held without molestation. Mr. Dillon succeeded in addressing a fugitive meeting outside the village of Boherlahin. When he drove into the village to give another speech, followed by a large crowd, the police attacked the crowd savagely with drawn batons and dispersed it. Messrs. O'Brien and Dillon protested against the action of the police, and the latter told Mr. Dillon was struck on the head with a baton. Later the military arrived and made several charges upon the returning crowd before it was finally scattered. In the melee a policeman was seriously injured and many of the crowd were severely clubbed.

SHE IS A PRINCESS.

London Gossips of the Recent Wedding of an American Girl.

LONDON, May 28.—San Francisco can no longer claim the distinction of possessing the only American princess, an honor which has been enjoyed by Mrs. Mackay's daughter since 1885, for last Tuesday Miss Clara Ward, who hails from Detroit, became Princess Josephine Chimay, bringing her husband $2,000,000 and expectations, Edmund Yates cables from London. The daily papers have discussed the untold riches of the young bride, the dowry of the princess, the list of the guests, half of them Dukes and Duchesses, takes us back to the palmy days of the second Empire, and the magnificent function of Tuesday consoling the Belgian minister of foreign affairs for his recent political troubles. The new princess De Chimay is not royalty, nor even semi-royalty, as her husband is a commoner, but she is a princess in the eyes of the world, and she has not yet been crowned beyond chapter 2, section B, of "Almanach de Gotha." It can not even claim descent from the Princess of Chimay, ennobled by Emperor Maximilian, who were de crows. They were simple counts of Garaman until the King of Holland gave them the old title, as recently as 1821. Since then the Chimays have sat in the Belgian parliament and held office. The present head of the house is a diplomatist and an excellent violin-player. He married Miss Montagu Forbes, a Scotch heiress, and now his eldest son, who is just 32, has carried off Miss Clara Ward, as wealthy as she is wealthy.

CROWDS HEAR GLADSTONE.

The Grand Old Man Predicts an Early Appeal to the Electors.

LONDON, May 28.—An immense gathering of people assembled on the grounds of Hawarden Castle to listen to an address by Mr. Gladstone. Throughout the morning special trains packed with people from English and Welsh towns and villages, far and near, were constantly arriving, while hundreds of persons living within a few miles of the castle, and the grounds, had marched to the castle. Mr. Gladstone predicted that a general parliamentary election would take place at an early date, and appealed to the electors of the country generally to give final utterance on that occasion to their condemnation of further parleying with the Irish question. He denounced the government's bill to compensate publicans. The control of licensing, he said, should be vested in local election bodies. He said that £1,500,000,000 of the national debt, he declared, he purchased the licenses of the publicans. The working-men knowing the horrors of drink, ought to protest against the government's immoral plans.

Paris Lunatics Mutiny.

PARIS, May 28.—A number of criminal lunatics confined in the Bateau Asylum, in the southern environs of Paris, revolted and smashed all the furniture and other property they could lay hands upon. In the attempt to subdue the mutinous lunatics several wardens were wounded, and troops had to be summoned to suppress the disorder and place the riotous ones under restraint.

Would Result in Boulanger's Recall.

LONDON, May 28.—Henri Rochefort says he learns on good authority that the conclusion of the alliance between Russia and Germany is near at hand. This, he adds, would give Boulanger another opportunity. He would be recalled at the only opportunity. France has confidence in to oppose such combination, should active operations become inevitable.

Panama Canal Accounting.

WRECKED BY AN EXPLOSION.

Nitro-Glycerine in a Burning Building at Bowling Green, Ohio.

FINDLAY, Ohio, May 28.—Three dwellings, one business house and a hotel on the main street of Bowling Green, in the heart of the oil section, were destroyed by fire and the explosion of nitro-glycerine. The fire began in a dwelling house and soon communicated to Taylor's hardware store, wherein a quantity of nitro-glycerine and other explosives used in shooting oil and gas wells were stored, and in a second stage the fire reached the basement of the store a terrible explosion followed, which tore a hole in the ground large enough to bury the court house and wrecked half a block of buildings, including the Wooster hotel. Several persons were injured by the falling debris, but none seriously.

TRANSPORTING LIQUOR.

THE SENATE DISCUSSES "ORIGINAL PACKAGES."

Mr. Eustis Argues against the Bill Giving the States Control—Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The Senate resumed consideration of the bill subjecting imported liquors to the provisions of the laws of the several States, the question being on the substitute reported from the judiciary committee providing that liquors so transported shall, when their actual and continuous transportation shall have terminated, be considered to have ceased to be the subjects of commerce with foreign nations and among the several States, and shall be a part of the common mass of property within the State and be subject to its police regulations.

Mr. Eustis said that the question presented by the bill under discussion was a very perplexing one, on the one hand large property interests were represented, and on the other hand there was encountered a strong moral sentiment in one, two or more States. The difficulty in the question arose in the attempt to reconcile the conflict between the rights of property under the constitution and laws and that moral sentiment known as prohibition. To-day it was proposed to legislate against the breweries of Milwaukee and of St. Louis and against the distilleries of North Carolina, Illinois and New York.

"It is proposed," continued Mr. Eustis, "to tell the people of Iowa that they shall have the power to regulate commerce between themselves and all the other States on the liquor question. To-morrow they would be asking for the exclusion of cotton-seed oil, of which the State of Louisiana produces a large amount in value. Then they would be asking that dressed beef from Illinois and tobacco from North Carolina should not be considered an article of commerce within the meaning of the constitution. And thus power would be given to each State to build on its exterior limits an impenetrable wall that should exclude the product of every foreign country and of every other State."

After further debate the bill went over without action.

The vice-president announced the appointment of Mr. Blackburn as a member of the committee on appropriations, and of Mr. Carlisle as a member of the committee on finance, territories and woman suffrage.

The conference report on the bill to simplify the law in relation to the collection of the revenue was presented and agreed to.

THE HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The House passed the Senate bill for the erection of a public building at Beaver Falls, Pa., at a cost of $50,000, with an amendment striking out the appropriation clause; also Senate bill for a public building at Martinsburg, W. Va., with an amendment reducing the limit of cost from $125,000 to $75,000.

The conference report upon the customs tariff bill was adopted, as amended by Mr. McKinley, and after an hour's debate was adopted. The Democrats, as a rule, refrained from voting, and the Speaker counted a quorum.

GOTHAM ASKS FOR AID.

Congress Requested to Contribute $250,000 for the Grant Monument.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Mr. Flower, of New York, has introduced in the House a joint resolution making an appropriation in aid of the erection of a national monument or memorial to General Grant at Riverside Park in New York city.

The resolution appropriates $250,000 to be disbursed by the Secretary of the Treasury and paid over to the Grant Monument association to provide for the successful completion of the erection of the monument; provided, however, that the Secretary of the Treasury shall have paid over this money, by satisfactory evidence, that there shall have been contributed and in the hands of the treasurer of the Monument association not less than $250,000 to aid in the erection of the monument.

A preamble to the resolution cites the object of the monument association and states that it is highly proper that Congress should fully recognize the great and valuable services rendered by General Grant by co-operating toward securing the successful completion of the structure to be created over his remains at Riverside Park in New York city.

Order to Census Supervisors.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The superintendent of the census has issued the following important order to all census supervisors:

"You will please instruct enumerators in cases where persons refuse to answer the questions on the population schedule relating to physical and mental disabilities, (22 and 23) to the questions relating to farms, homes, and mortgages (26 to 30), inclusive, to enter in the proper column the words 'refused to answer.' No further steps will be necessary on the part of the supervisor or enumerator, and all legal proceedings will be instituted by the Washington office through the department of justice."

Pension Legislation.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The conference on the general pension bill have had another meeting, but accomplished nothing. They told an hour and then adjourned until next Monday. One report says they are not drifting apart, but inasmuch as an early agreement was expected when the conference separated last week, an impression prevails that the outlook now is less favorable than it was then.

Mr. Quay Will Preside.

Mr. McCluney Has a Scheme.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The ways and means committee has decided to report against the loaning of government money on farm mortgages and crops, which has been urged by the Farmers' Alliance of the South and West. Mr. McCluney, of North Carolina, now proposes that $1,500,000,000 be loaned to the various States pro rata. The money is to be loaned upon real estate at 1 per cent, or one-half the rate proposed in Stanford's bill.

Dean, his cousin, 31 years old, of this city, were drowned in a mill pond at Providence Forge, in New Kent county, yesterday. The two men went from here down to the pond on an excursion. Mr. Chapman was in a boat sailing, when, by some means, the craft capsized and he went down. The other, who witnessed his danger, got into a boat and started to the rescue. But before he had gotten very far from shore his boat, too, was overturned and he sank. Neither of the men seemed to be able to swim, and were drowned before any assistance could reach them. Their bodies were found and brought back to this city on the excursion train.

EARTHQUAKE IN INDIANA.

Several Shocks Felt at Indianapolis—The Supposed Cause.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 28.—Earthquake shocks were felt here at an early hour. Fifteen occupants of a frame building at the Vandallia transfer yards experienced an unusual shock, accompanied by a shaking of the building and a sound like the rushing of a volume of water beneath the building. The first shock was quickly followed by a second, and so on until nine distinct shocks had been felt by the then thoroughly frightened inmates. A peculiar feature of the disturbance was its being heard by yardmen some distance away from the building, and they also thought they could hear a sound akin to the rushing of water. It is supposed a large subterranean body of water lying underneath that portion of the city had been greatly agitated by some unknown cause.

LITTLE OF EVERYTHING

PROGRESS OF THE PILE-DRIVERS ON THE NEW BRIDGE.
The Right of Way Down South River Street—Many Little Items of Interest to the Reader.
BUILDING SIDE TRACKS.
Line to Janesville Machine Company Will be Built if Right of Way is Granted.

The work of driving piles for the new railroad bridge is rapidly proceeding. Two steam pile drivers—one in the race and one in the river, are working constantly with a full force of men. An interested crowd of spectators watch the work in both places. The first stroke of the heavy hammer will send a pile about eighteen inches into the river bed. The distance will gradually decrease until about the twentieth stroke when no change will be seen, and a peculiar solid sound will be heard when the hammer strikes. Then the hammer will be blocked up at the top of the machine and the ropes hitched to a new pile and the operation of driving repeated.

The machine on the race is differently constructed from that in the river. The latter is set up on D. C. Ward's big saw boat and is pulled along by the work proceeds, on iron rollers. As fast as a row of piles—four in number—are driven, the tops are cut off square and a 12x12 timber spiked on top. The rollers are then secured to the timber, ropes hitched to a pile and connected with the engine. The engineer sets the engine in motion, and the whole apparatus is rolled forward ready for a new row of piles.

A large force of section men are also at work along the race bank between the cotton mill power house and Hodson's mill, moving the track, which in the beginning was laid on the west side of the road. The men dig a trench about a foot deep and as wide as the ties on the east side. Then with cross bars they gradually work the track which is now laid on top of the ground over into the trench, when the dirt is shoveled back and the track nicely ballasted.

A surveyor squats through a theodolite at a red and white pole held by his helper, and jots down the figures, getting the grade for the track layers. Everything works smoothly and no false motions are made by the workmen.

Mr. F. B. Atkin, who has charge of the work, was seen by a Gazette reporter this morning and in reply to a question as to whether the company would run a side track to the works of the Janesville Machine Company, said: "We are now working for the right of way, as soon as we get that the track will be put down. There seems to be little opposition to any of the work."

"How long will the bridge across the river be?" was asked.

"Between five and six hundred feet. From there the track goes directly on to Main street and up to the gas works and sand pit. We have about thirty men now at work."

Captain Pliny Norcross was seen regarding the opposition to laying the track in South River street. "Yes, there is some opposition," said the captain, "but it is with only four persons—Mike Dawson, Ed. Keating, Ed. Rathman, and Wm. H. Tallman; but I think it will be settled soon to everybody's satisfaction. No, I am not opposed to laying the track in that street, although I own considerable property there."

In explaining the demands of the property owners on that street from Milwaukee to Pleasant street, Captain Norcross said: They would require that the street be either paved or macadamized, plankbed with the rails with three-inch plank, and maintained free of expense to the property owners on the street. I should like to see the street paved with blocks, and am perfectly willing to do the paving in front of my property myself, but some insist on making this the basis of the agreement for the right of way. Of course, there will be a spur track down to my mill on Dodge street. The matter, I think, will be amicably settled in a day or two. It is a good thing for the shippers in this city."

A HORSE AND BUGGY.
Found Hitched at a School House in the Town of Harmony by a School Boy.
This morning a son of Mr. M. J. Aiken found a horse and buggy hitched at a school house in what is known as the "Hoskins" District, in the town of Harmony. He at once notified his father and on examination, a board was found in the buggy with the words: "Deliver to Allen, Belvidere, Ill.," written upon it. Mr. Aiken brought the horse to town about half past two o'clock this afternoon and hitched it in front of King & Skelly's, and handed up Constable Acherson, who telegraphed the city marshal at Belvidere for information as to whether a horse was missing from that place and at three o'clock no answer has been received.

The horse is a fine looking animal, grey, almost white in color, and hitched to a nice looking Timken spring buggy trimmed with green broadcloth. The buggy is painted black. The outfit is supposed to have been stolen and the thieves became scared and abandoned it.

It was ascertained later that the horse was stolen from Belvidere last night. Officers will probably come here for the outfit to-morrow.

The case of Scott against Holdredge is on trial in the circuit court to-day. The forenoon was occupied by taking the testimony of the defendant, Mr. Holdredge. Doe & Sutherland appear for the plaintiff, and Danwidde & Goldin for defendant.

Justice M. S. Prichard is acting as municipal judge during the illness of Judge H. A. Patterson.

Judge Patterson's condition still remains unchanged.

Attend the adjourned meeting at the rooms of the Business Men's Association at eight o'clock Thursday evening. Matters of special importance will be discussed.
